Adimula, associate professor, centre for peace and strategic studies, university of Ilorin, Ilorin, Nigeria. A legal scholar whose interdisciplinary research spans the fields of law, taxation, gender justice, peacebuilding, and international development. With over three decades of combined experience in academic research and legal practice, her work focuses on the intersection of international legal frameworks and the lived experiences of women in trade and displaced populations. In her book, international humanitarian law-ihl (the law of armed conflict), she explores contemporary issues at the intersection of law and armed conflict. The quality and relevance of which recently attracted the federal government for adoption, through united nations high-level committee on implementation of ihl treaties in Nigeria, under federal ministry of justice. She is well published in credible national and international journals in the fields of taxation, law, peace and gender studies.

She is resourceful in progress attraction for expansion wherever she serves and result-oriented for good initiatives and programs. Demonstrated extensively in her service to CITN and SWIT.

Enjoys mentorship of younger generation and possesses good inter personal relationship with people, which has greatly assisted in commendable good leadership in CITN, SWIT, across settings and climes. Committed to continuous service of CITN.

My association and membership of other professional associations has helped broaden my knowledge greatly. My professional capacity has been strengthened. I am a firm believer in inclusive leadership, one that listens, engages and empower. I value team work and recognize that sustainable institutional progress can only be achieved through collective effort and shared vision.

As the body statutorily charged with regulating tax practice in Nigeria, the chartered institute of taxation of Nigeria should place premium importance on professional standards, ethics, discipline, and accountability. These are qualities i bring on board as a council member and which i intend to hold on to.

I am honoured to present myself for election into the Council of the Chartered Institute of Taxation of Nigeria (CITN). As a committed tax professional, I bring to the Institute a deep passion for ethical taxation, institutional growth, and purposeful leadership that advances both our profession and national development.

My leadership philosophy is founded on integrity, competence, inclusion, and service. To me, leadership is not a position to be occupied, but a responsibility to be discharged with sincerity and accountability. It requires the ability to listen, to build consensus across generations of professionals, and to make decisions guided by fairness, transparency, and the long-term interest of the Institute. I remain firmly committed to a style of leadership that places service above self and upholds the highest standards of professionalism and ethical conduct for which CITN is respected.

My vision is to see the Institute further consolidate its standing as the foremost authority on taxation in Nigeria and an influential voice in fiscal policy and national economic discourse. In an era shaped by digital transformation, global tax reforms, evolving compliance standards, and increasing fiscal complexities, the Institute must continue to respond proactively and strategically. I envision a Council that deepens professional capacity development, strengthens research and policy advocacy, enhances member value, and fosters stronger collaboration with government, academia, and industry stakeholders.

If entrusted with the opportunity to serve on Council, my contributions will focus on three critical areas:

First, I will support initiatives aimed at strengthening professional development through continuous training in emerging areas such as digital taxation, tax technology, transfer pricing, fiscal sustainability, and international tax compliance. This is essential to ensuring that our members remain technically sound, globally relevant, and professionally competitive.

Second, i will advocate for stronger research and thought leadership within the institute. Taxation remains central to economic growth, revenue mobilisation, and fiscal stability. CITN must therefore continue to provide credible, evidence-based contributions to public policy discussions and national reforms. I will support initiatives that expand the institute's research capacity and policy engagement.

Third, i will promote greater member engagement and mentorship, particularly for younger professionals and aspiring tax practitioners. A stronger culture of mentorship will help preserve institutional values, bridge generational gaps, encourage innovation, and sustain the institute's proud legacy of excellence.

CITN stands at a defining moment in Nigeria's fiscal and economic transformation. With visionary leadership, unity of purpose, and a continued commitment to excellence, the institute can further strengthen its relevance, influence, and impact within the profession and the nation at large.

I am a core professional with over 25 years of experience in the private (banking) and public (tax administration) institutions. A member of various professional institutes and an academic adviser.

I am hard-working, proactive, and self-motivated, with a knack for providing efficient and effective support in achieving organizational goals. A very detailed and result-oriented personality, good communication and interpersonal skills, and an excellent team player.

My tax administration journey spans over 13 years and has seen me excel across various departments. I have attended various training sessions on policy, leadership, customer service, banking, government securities trading, and tax administration, both locally and internationally, that have helped shape my orientation and broaden my horizons.

I have a track record of consistently exceeding deliverables and driving turnaround improvements across the various responsibilities i handle. I lead with integrity and purpose, and am very result-oriented.

I have received several awards and commendation letters during my career in both private and public institutions.
